COWARDLY MURDER.

The Particulars of the Killing of C. W. Beach of Prescott -- Shot While Writing's Letter to His Son.

The following particulars of the murder of C. W. Beach in Prescott, on Tuesday evening last are taken from Wednesday, Morning Courier: About ten minutes past seven, last evening, as Charles W. Beach was sitting in his room in Mrs. Taylor's residence and , lodging house West Prescott, writing a letter to his young son, who is in Los Angeles, Cal., with his mother, some person emptied the con-tents of a shot gun through the window-The greatest portion of the shot struck Mr. Beach in the left eye, knocking him over and killing him almost instant-

We have beard that the landlady Mrs. Taylor had been in the room but a short time previous, attending to the lamp or something. Len Hale, who resides on the opposite side of the street from the Taylor mansion, heard the report and was, we learned, the first man to enter the room. He found Beach lying on the flour, with the last breath of life leaving his body. Several persons say they saw the man who did the shooting, but as it was dark, they disclaim having any knowledge as to who he was. Chief of Police Dodson, Mr. Shekles and Dr. Day were among the first to reach the house. He was dead before they arrived. An inquest was held. The dead man has property in Kirk land Valley and other places in the county and we hope that it will be well taken care of for the family.

by telegraph. C. W. The United States District court met n this city to-day. There was probably never as many men, witnesses and jurors in attendance before. The court room was crowded all day. This was done to save the point for future use if necessary. The jury was then instructed by the court as to their duty.

The robbery cases are foremost now and were talked on the streets and in the court room to-day by everybody, and they will grow in interest from day to day to day as the investigation proceeds Following is the list of the grand jurors: C. BROOM MAKING.

AN INDUSTRY WHERE THE SMALL CAPITALIST HOLDS HIS OWN.

tain division of the labor, an abundance of capital is of no special advantage. The broom center of the country is in The broom center of the country is in New York state, the largest establishments and the best workmen being located in the Mohawk valley. The time was when the Mohawk valley was the was when the Mohawk valley was the broom corn raising center of the committee on Episcopacy, was sitting in front of a hotel when constant addressed him: "You are bedringy and more succulent and prolitable cabbage has driven the wavy green tassels of broom corn from the flats which were once their favorite growing place. It was in former years that the trade of makin_brooms became so well established.

A BROOM FACTORY. The growth of a broom factory is interesting. A young man of economical habits learns the trade, and, having learned it well, is able to do the equivalent of turning out from 100 to 125 or 156 complete brooms a day. As a matter of fact, in well regulated shops no man makes a complete broom, but only one part of it, but the journeyman having earned his trade well can do enough work usually at piece prices to earn from $2 to $3 a day. Out of this he ought to save $500 before starting in trade for himself With this sum he can buy enough machinery (at a cost of $150) and stock to set from three to five men at work and keep them going until returns come in from the sales. That is a very modest capital, but since the machinery costs : c little, men have started on $300, and even less, and made notable successes as the trade goes. Second hand tools can be had sometimes for $60 or $80, a couple of bales of corn would cost perlaps $35, 500 handles $6.50 more, and other supplies $25, and then the man is ready to set up shop and make all the brooms his neigh-bors can use, at least.

The trade in New York city calls for about 150,000 dozen brooms a year. The majority of them are made in Amsterdam and other towns along the Mohawk river Many come from Jersey, however. The factories are unpretentious wooden buildings. Steam power in the larger factories is used in stitching the broom and in winding the wire around the corn where it is secured to the handle. The largest factory in the business, according to a New York dealer, turns out 1,000 brooms a day, or twice as many as the New York city trade demands. In such a factory a man's work is equivalent to the making ing to the quality of the brooms.

Of the trade in the corn a dealer said. "The manufacturers buy their corn in the west. Kansas corn has the best reputation in this market, but Missouri, Ne-braska and Illinois raise a great deal. The grop was very small in Kansas this year, and Illinois did better than any other state. An ordinary crop is 300 to 400 pounds to the acre. If a farmer gets 509 counds he pays off some of his mortgage. and when the crop reaches 600 pounds he buys a new sitk dress for his wife and a ton. It costs $25 a ton to get it here from Kansas and $15 from Illinois. The midsion, and so must the New York merchant. If a farmer receives $20 an acre for his crop he is doing well; still that is better than wheat at sixty cents a bushel. BROOM CORN IN BALES.

"The corn comes to this market in bales averaging 300 pounds each. The corn from the prairies is baled with lath and wire, but some Ohio corn comes here with very liberal chunks of wood to keep the bales from tumbling to pieces. The wood sells at the same price as the corn, if the prairie farmer gets even with the Ohio man by dropping a sod or two into the

"The corn on the average will make 1,000 brooms to the ton, although in some fancy brands of extra heavy brooms as much as fifty pounds is used for a dezen brooms. In the parlor brooms sold pounds are used.

There is quite an export trade in broom corn in ordinary times and in brooms in other times. With low prices on the corn the corn is shipped, but when the broom makers have a spurt, as they sometimes do, and flood the market, no broom trust having yet been formed, brooms are sold so low as to enable merchants to send them to Cuba and South America. Very little broom corn is ordinarily sent to Europe. the fields of southern France and of Italy supplying the European market. "What is the trick in this trade, if there be tricks in all trades?" was asked of a

"It is in making poor corn look like good. The best article has a healthy green color, like well cured timothy hay. That color indicates toughness, with proper flexibility. The cheap stuff, worth $89 a ton, is of a sickly yellow or lemon color. Nothing is easier than to give to the yel-low corn a bath in a green dye, so as to give it the appearance of first color corn until after it is sold. Manufacturers who use only the uncolored corn assert that the doctored stuff has Paris green in it, and that when the untidy housewife takes a broom splint to try her cake or pick he teeth, she is toying with a deadly poison. The men who make the dye say it is harmless vegetable compound. People who will use broom corn splints for suc purposes may, perhaps, be frightened from an untidy habit by fear of poison but no case has yet been recorded where any one was poisoned by a broom splint. -New York Sun.

At the Court House

There is nothing of an interesting or exciting nature going on in the courts to day. Judging from the witnesses that are going in and coming out of the United States grand jury room, that body is engaged in an investigation of the Wham robbery cases, but when the result will be made known, no one is Trade.
